Last fall I was attacked with consumption from which I suffered greatly, but by taking enough, shortness of breath, great emaciation, loss of appetite, and profuse night sweat, I was compelled to give up all medical treatment, and my case seemed hopeless. I then turned to Dr. A. B. C. in Times' ABC Expectorant, and during March I used the A. C. E. Expectorant, and during April I discontinued the use of the Expectorant, and had a rapid and entire recovery. I thank you for your kind remarks, especially the A. B. C. Report of the tobacco crop in that State is virtually sold, even in the Danville market, where they had a season last week, it is said the crop will be well nigh exhausted by the end of this month, or the next ten days of July. There is already a good offering in the hands of importers for sale, and that in manufacturers' hands North Carolina is hardly more than their requirements in stocks of leaf. The growing crop, taken all in, will find itself with hardly much increase, for while the tobacco plant in Western and Eastern North Carolina, than last year, (about 25 per cent.) still the border counties of Virginia and North Carolina, which supply the tobacco, or the bulk of it, are being put into a higher position, owing to the greater labor. Insects reported plentiful, and the tobacco worm is already at work on the young plants. A gentleman reports his field infested, and that he has a large amount of tobacco in his plant, but this state of affairs might well have been anticipated from the very mild winter we had, failing to destroy the average number of pupae.

The Richmond tobacco market opened to-day fairly and with a good deal of bright tobacco, sellers and cutters. Inspections of bright fairly large; of dark tobacco, small; of Western tobacco, good. Receptions light. Receipts moderately large. Deliveries very heavy (being about three times the receipts). Internal revenue collections very good, especially on tobacco.
